

Democrats And Republicans Unite In Eulogizing The Dead Iowa Statesman With Tribute To His Ability And Value To The Nation.

La Follette Forces Defeated In Effort To Confine Primary-Expense Inquiry To Isaac Stephenson.

F. E. McGovern, republican.
N. Earl Brown, democrat.
Melville, Hoyt, democrat.
Jacob Kummell, social democrat.
The first three named are millionaire lumbermen and all spent freely in the necessarily expensive campaign.
The investigators will be empowered to hire assistants and summon witnesses. Any three of the eight members, five assembly and three senators, will have the power to summon witnesses or require answers to questions.
This last provision was granted the La Follette members of the conference, because they declared that otherwise the Stephenson investigators, who will be a majority of the committee, would exclude testimony favorable to the La Follette or anti-Stephenson side.
Senator Lehr of Appleton declares he will go into the supreme court for an injunction to stop the constitution-ality or empowering a legislative committee to expend money for investigation, help and witness fees, without legislate appropriation by the legislature, but this move will hardly prevent the investigation. A report of the investigation must be made on or before March 15.

Democratic Speakers
Senator Teller of Colorado, formerly republican Senator, later a democratic senator, having changed the free-diver question and on last term, was the first democratic speaker. He was followed by Senator J. W. Daniels of Virginia, Senator Augustus Bacon of Georgia Senator Benjamin Tillman of South Carolina.

EDGERTON SCHOOL IS NEARLY READY

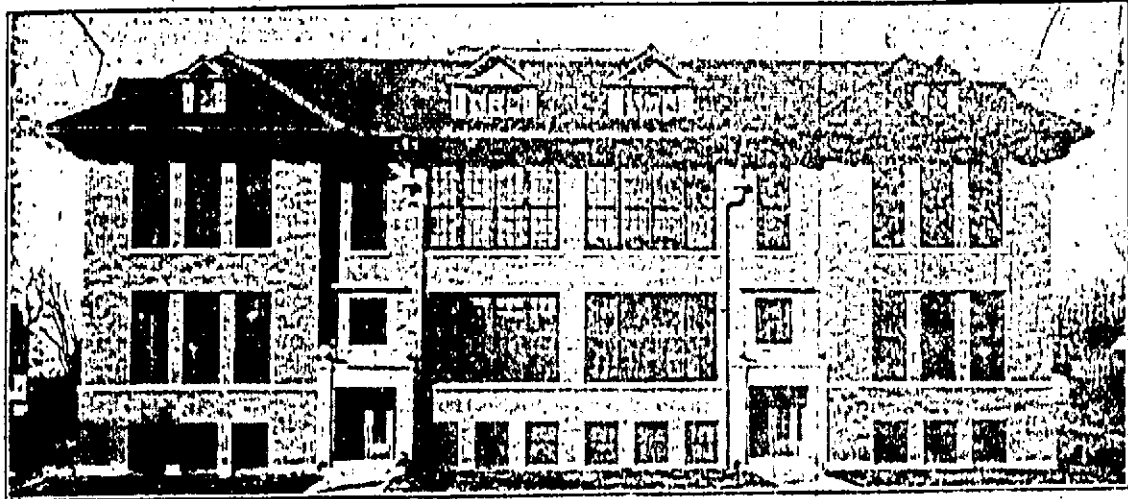

HAS BEEN ERECTED AS MEMORIAL STRUCTURE. COMPLETE IN THE DETAILS

Main Room Will Seat One Hundred And Fifty Pupils—Pleasant, Airy Structure.

Edgerton, Feb. 6.—The new Child Memorial high school building is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy in two more weeks. The seats are being placed in the assembly room which has a seating capacity of one hundred and fifty. It is a pleasant, airy room with plenty of light.

The ceiling is frescoed in deep cream, with sides done in arched areas of a soft green tint. The curtains are of a darker green, and a dark wood-paneled oak finish gives perfect harmony to the entire room.

The ceilings and finishings throughout the building are of the same weathered oak which corresponds with the strictly colonial style of the structure.

On one side of the assembly room is the professor's office and the physics laboratory; on the other side is the botanical laboratory.

The lower floor has several pleasant recreation rooms with numerous book cases and several large open lockers for wraps.

A balcony gives a view down into the gymnasium, a large room on the first floor which will be fully equipped with all the apparatus necessary to a well regulated high school gymnasium.

On the same floor are the domestic science room, the manual training room, and toilet rooms, with hot and cold water and shower baths.

It is a finely equipped building and one which the city of Edgerton may well be proud of.

Miss Child may realize the appreciation of citizens, pupils and teachers in the years to come.

A city high school fitted with every convenience to work with and every advantage that money can buy, is a magnificent gift, and the city of Edgerton appreciates it.

Much credit is due Mr. Wagner, the contractor, for his untiring efforts. He has carefully watched the construction of the building and insisted upon every detail being perfect.

When the building is turned over to the Board of Education they may well feel proud, with the assurance that Edgerton's high school stands second to none in the state of Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pringel left last evening for Gay's Mills for a few days' visit with Mrs. Pringel's brother, Mr. Arthur Turner.

Mr. and Mrs. John Conn returned to their home in Albany this morning after a month's visit with their son, Joe, and family. Mr. Conn is in very poor health and felt a longing for his own home.

The O. E. S. held a social at Masonic hall last evening for the benefit of the O. E. S. home fund. Owing to the inclemency of the weather there were only about fifty out. The proceeds amounted to one hundred dollars, which will be forwarded to the treasurer of the home.

Miss Cora Page returned last evening from Stoughton where she has been visiting relatives for the past week.

Miss Florence Doty very pleasantly entertained the high school faculty and a few of her young friends at a six-thirty o'clock, three-course, dinner last evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Routh, Miss Bennett, Miss Thornton, Mr. Gyle, and Mr. Burns of the high school faculty, the Messrs. Iverson and Kall, and Messrs. Roy Wright and Harold Parr.

Miss Hazel Underhill left this morning for Quincy, Fla., where she will spend the rest of the winter.

La Crosse, Wis., Feb. 6.—Masquerading as a woman and frightening women and children by his queer antics, Ed Sluttter, aged 51 years, of French, was arrested and is occupying a cell in the county jail. Sluttter carried a quantity of carbolic acid and other poisons in his pockets. He claims he was only having a little fun.

M'LAUGHLIN DEFIES BROWNE. Declares Minority Leader Has Known Woman Two Years.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—The stage setting of the alleged "plot to discredit" Lee O'Neil Browne, minority leader in the house of Representatives, was shifted to Chicago yesterday, when John J. McLaughlin returned to the city from the state capital.

After proclaiming defiance to the minority leader to expose those implicated in the so-called political "plot," the first lieutenant of Roger Sullivan asserted that the woman was a former friend of Browne's. He further declared that the minority leader had known her for more than two years, and that he would prove it if Browne wanted proof.

This declaration, following but a few hours after the disclosure of the identity of the woman, who created a furor in the state house Tuesday, caused a sensation. The woman is said to be Miss E. E. Christie of Waco, Tex., and her "mysterious uncle," who has been supplying her with funds, G. G. Hoover, a wealthy resident of Little Rock, Ark.

Moultrie, Ga., Feb. 6.—With the wind blowing a perfect gale, forest fires in Colquitt county yesterday continued to rage. Fire came within a mile of the courthouse. There is no manner of even estimating the loss. Many families have fled from their homes, leaving them prey to the flames.

Blow to Indiana "Drys." Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6.—The anti-saloon wave that has been sweeping Indiana had a setback yesterday when Wayne county, the thirteenth in the state to hold a local option election, gave the "wets" the victory by a majority of nearly 1,000.

occasional sigh to be at rest, and the smile which flits up the wan face is as cheerful as of old.

California, Oregon and Nevada have all signified their intention of excluding the Japanese or at least making it so disagreeable for him that he will not come within their confines.

However, Uncle Sam has something interesting to say relative to that matter.

Barnett Comper and John Mitchell, the labor leaders now under sentence for contempt of court in the truck Range stove case, are creating quite a sensation in New York this winter by default speeches delivered to large audiences in sympathy with them.

These men are heroes of another class, and because of the work accomplished and the high regard which this work commands, are now regarded as martyrs by a large following of organized labor. It is to be regretted, on this account, that the courts did not award some other punishment, for the martyr is always an object of sympathy and in this case the organization represented comes in for its full share.

But the rank and file of humanity have more respect for the common everyday heroes of the Jack Hinn type—the men who neither play to the galleries nor pose as martyrs, but are content to faithfully fill their niche in the busy workshop of everyday life, ready to respond to any emergency call which may be presented.

Warfield, the most popular, if not the greatest, actor on the American stage today, represents this class of heroes in "The Music Master," the play which made him famous.

The plot is cast in a German city where a composer battles with poverty to gain a foothold, and the night his opera is presented, goes home elated, to find that his wife has deserted him, taking with her the little girl so dearly loved, to later become the wife of a successful rival.

Eighteen years later the musicmaster finds his daughter in America, enjoying all the luxuries which money can secure, while he is struggling for existence in an attic home, surrounded by comrades in equally straitened circumstances.

The battle between the father's love and duty to his daughter brings out the strong points in the character of the great actor, who is now playing to 2,500 people every night in the Academy of Music, the fourth year of the play in New York.

It is an interesting study to watch the face of this man Warfield, at close range, and then turn to the great audience, convulsed one moment with laughter and the next in tears, and the question suggested is, "What is there about this man and his play which captivates so completely?"

There is only one solution and that is found in the fact that the play itself is intensely human, while the actor puts into it so much heart that long before the curtain falls on the closing act the single sentiment prevails, that he is a hero of the grandest type—a victor over self.

This, of course, is a play, and the argument may be used, by people who are prejudiced against all theater, that no good ever comes from a playhouse, but the man who is privileged to see this great actor, in one of the most human dramas ever written, will be forced to acknowledge that his moral nature has experienced an uplift seldom equalled by either pulpit or platform effort.

Heroes are made of common clay, and they are so numerous that but few are ever discovered beyond a limited circle. The tragedy of the sea and the fog belongs to the exceptional, but when these tragedies occur there is always at hand a Jack Hinn, ready for any emergency.

Warfield portrays the larger class of men and women who wage heroic warfare with themselves through long and weary years, never giving up the fight until the summons comes, and the "well done, thou good and faithful servant," ushers them into a land of peace and rest.

It is the coal man's turn again and the farmer who hoped to plant his spring crops two weeks ago is wondering whether his feed will hold out through six weeks more of winter we are to have.

Tobacco men are busy, these days. The thaw and rain gave the growers a good opportunity to handle their crops and now they are receiving the benefits from their long summer's work.

Uncle Sam's big fleet is homeward bound and the whole of the eastern world and later Europe will have witnessed the sight of the floating monsters as an example of the nation's greatness.

This delay in choosing a United States Senator at Madison is not the delay that will come two years from now when another senatorial aspirant seeks to be named under his own primary law.

Roosevelt will continue to wield his big stick up to the last moment and if anyone doubts it let them try to stir the machinery his way.

Janesville today has a representative of the automobile industry of the city being shown to the auto-owners at the big Chicago auto show.

It is safe to say that local politics will warm up shortly, even though they are somewhat chilly just at present.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

MODERN PREACHING. A Philadelphia preacher has struck a keynote. He says the preachers of the country must return to the preaching of punishment for sin.

He notes the awakening of the public conscience as to economic, political and social evils and says: "Colonial villains have been unveiled to merciless publicity, and the majesty of the law has been asserted and the sword of justice unsheathed."

In other words, during the past few years men in high places have discovered THERE IS A HELL.

Worse than the hell pictured by medieval theology is the day of judgment that has come to these men. They have learned that the death referred to in Scripture—"the soul that sinneth it shall die"—is infinitely to be dreaded beyond any physical torture of fire and brimstone.

Here is the opportunity of the preachers.

In the reaction from the old materialistic teaching the pulpit have turned to the themes concerning the love and mercy of God, forgetting the judgments of the Almighty.

They have used the soft pedal. There has been a lot of "sweetness and light." There has been little of thundering at man's conscience, little laying down of the eternal laws of retribution.

The preachers must be blind to the signs of the times if they do not see the opportunity for the old time preaching concerning the awfulness of sin and the certainty of punishment.

Let them show men that, as Emerson says, "sin and punishment grow on the same stem." Let them cite the certainties of the moral law and illustrate these certainties by what is going on in the world every day.

THE HELL WHICH MEN WRITE IN IS IN PLAIN VIEW.

All the priest needs to do is to point the finger and say to men, "THERE IT IS!"

Why not hunt up some of the old texts and give them a new setting? This one, which came hot from the heart of the Master and directed to the Pharisees, would serve for one good sermon: "How can you escape the damnation of hell?"

Any woman would rather have small feet than a thorough acquaintance with the classics.

The trial naturally promises spectacular features. Associated with it are incidents of unusual interest. The hearing marks the dedication of the new criminal court house and the temple of justice is to be baptized by one of the greatest legal battles ever fought in the entire south. The trial opens just as the prohibition battle, launched by the brilliant leader who was slain, is being won on Capitol Hill, within sight of where he fell.

One of the defendants is to be tried in a court of which his brother is the clerk. Emblem upon the trial, profession are arrayed on either side as counsel. All are determined, all begin their work with seriousness and determination written upon their faces.

The legal talent employed in the case is very imposing, and the attorneys were grouped around two long tables. For the state were Attorney General Jeff McCar, Capt. G. T. Fitzhugh of Memphis, Gen. J. B. Garnor of Lawrenceburg, and Gen. Matt Whitaker of Winchester. For the defense were Judge J. M. Anderson, Gen. W. H. Washington, Gen. S. H. Meeks, Judge Ed Baxter, Charles M. Hurch, James A. Ryan and Albert Ewing.

The defense has 72 peremptory challenges, 24 for each defendant, and the state 18 challenges, or six for each defendant. Judge Hart ordered 500 men summoned for jury service and says he will order the next panel to consist of 1,000. There are 4,000 qualified names on the jury wheel. Should these be exhausted without the selection of a jury the case would not go to trial.

Attorneys in the Cooper and Sharp Trial, Reading From Top to Bottom

They Are: Attorney General Jeff McCar, Who is Handling the Prosecution for the State; John C. Bradford, Uncle of Robin J. Cooper, One of the Counsel for the Defense, and J. M. Anderson, Formerly Criminal Judge in Davidson County, and Now Chief Counsel for the Defense.

Nashville, Tenn.—The trial of Col. Duncan Cooper and his son, Robin J. Cooper, and ex-Sheriff John D. Sharp in the Carmack murder case, is the greatest criminal case in the history of the Volunteer state.

Edward Carmack was shot to death in the streets of Nashville several weeks ago.

After the murder, and in the excitement attendant upon the crime, the state neglected to order a post mortem. It is essential in the trial that the direction from which the bullets came shall be determined. The state's theory is that Carmack, with his hat raised to greet a lady, was shot from behind. The defense asserts that he fired the first shot. It seems, however, that some time between the date of the killing and the present time, the state secretly and at night exhumed the body of the slain editor and caused a careful post mortem to be performed. The course of the bullets thus was determined and the state claims to have proved that the bullet which killed Carmack entered his neck from behind.

The defense does not claim that Colonel Cooper fired the shot. It maintains that young Cooper, believing his father's life was in danger, fired upon Carmack to protect his sire. And it is not contended that young Cooper stood any place but behind.

The trial naturally promises spectacular features. Associated with it are incidents of unusual interest. The hearing marks the dedication of the new criminal court house and the temple of justice is to be baptized by one of the greatest legal battles ever fought in the entire south. The trial opens just as the prohibition battle, launched by the brilliant leader who was slain, is being won on Capitol Hill, within sight of where he fell.

One of the defendants is to be tried in a court of which his brother is the clerk. Emblem upon the trial, profession are arrayed on either side as counsel. All are determined, all begin their work with seriousness and determination written upon their faces.

The legal talent employed in the case is very imposing, and the attorneys were grouped around two long tables. For the state were Attorney General Jeff McCar, Capt. G. T. Fitzhugh of Memphis, Gen. J. B. Garnor of Lawrenceburg, and Gen. Matt Whitaker of Winchester. For the defense were Judge J. M. Anderson, Gen. W. H. Washington, Gen. S. H. Meeks, Judge Ed Baxter, Charles M. Hurch, James A. Ryan and Albert Ewing.

The defense has 72 peremptory challenges, 24 for each defendant, and the state 18 challenges, or six for each defendant. Judge Hart ordered 500 men summoned for jury service and says he will order the next panel to consist of 1,000. There are 4,000 qualified names on the jury wheel. Should these be exhausted without the selection of a jury the case would not go to trial.

BOLT SPOILS ALL THE PLANS MADE

President Sends Consensus Bill
Veto to Congress

RAP AT THE POLITICIANS

Declares He Does Not Agree with Theory That Spoils Belong to Victor and Sees Attempt to Grab People's Perquisites.

Washington, Feb. 5.—"The evil effects of the spoils system and of the custom of treating appointments to the public service as personal perquisites of professional politicians are peculiarly evident in the case of a great public work like the taking of the census, a work which should emphatically be done for the whole people and with an eye single to their interest."

In these words President Roosevelt yesterday summed up a message to the house of representatives returning without his approval, the bill providing for the taking of the next census, because of the provision prescribing that appointments shall be made on the basis of non-competitive examinations instead of through the civil service commission. As passed by congress the bill permitted members and senators to designate persons for positions after they had undergone a simple examination.

Incidentally the president referred to the provision authorizing the printing of census reports by private concerns and laid stress on the point that where work was so allotted the eight-hour law should be "applied in effective fashion."

Outside of those matters, the president said that on the whole the bill was satisfactory to him and represented an improvement upon previous legislation on the subject. The house adjourned without action on the message.

Text of the Message.

The message in part follows: "I herewith return, without approval, H. R. 18954, entitled 'An Act to Provide for the Thirtieth and Subsequent Decennial Censuses.' I do this with extreme reluctance, because I fully realize the importance of supplying the director of the census at as early a date as possible with the force necessary to the carrying on of his work. But it is of high consequence to the country that the statistical work of the census shall be conducted with entire accuracy. This is as important from the standpoint of business and industry as from the scientific standpoint. It is, therefore, in my judgment, essential that the result should not be open to the suspicion of bias on political and personal grounds; that it should not be open to the reasonable suspicion of being a waste of the people's money and a fraud.

Wants Competitive Choice.

"Section 7 of the act provides in effect that appointments to the census shall be under the spoils system, for this is the real meaning of the provision that they shall be subject to noncompetitive examination. The proviso is added that they shall be selected without regard to political party affiliations. But there is only one way to guarantee that they shall be selected without regard to politics and on merit, and that is by choosing them after competitive examination from the lists of eligibles provided by the civil service commission. The present director of the census in his last report states the exact fact about these noncompetitive examinations when he says:

"A noncompetitive examination means that every one of the many thousands who will pass the examinations will have an equal right to appointment, and that personal and political pressure must in the end, in all ways before, become the determining factor with regard to the great body of these temporary employments. I cannot too earnestly urge that the director of the census be relieved from this unfortunate situation."

"I Don't Believe in It."

"To provide that the clerks and other employees shall be appointed after noncompetitive examination, and yet to provide that they shall be selected without regard to political party affiliations, means merely that the appointments shall be treated as the perquisites of the politicians of both parties, instead of as the perquisites of the politicians of one party. I do not believe in the doctrine that the victor belongs the spoils; but I think even less of the doctrine that the spoils shall be divided without a fight by the professional politicians on both sides; and this would be the result of permitting the bill in its present shape to become a law. Both of the last censuses, the eleventh and the twelfth, were taken under a provision of law excluding competition; that is, necessitating the appointments being made under the spoils system. Every man competent to speak with authority because of his knowledge of and familiarity with the work of these censuses has stated that the result was to produce extravagance and demoralization. Mr. Robert P. Porter, who took the census of 1890, states that:

"The efficiency of the decennial census would be greatly improved if its cost materially lessened if it were provided that the employees should be selected in accordance with the terms of the civil service law."

GOVERNOR HOKE SMITH OF GEORGIA AND A GROUP OF CONVICTS WORKING UNDER THE GEORGIA LEASE SYSTEM.

The convict lease system, the eyesore of the republic, will no longer exist in Georgia after March 31 of this year. At an extra session of the legislature, called by Governor Hoke Smith to take action on the system, and after a prolonged fight between the house and the senate a substitute bill was passed and signed by the governor, which specifies that after March 31 next the prison commission, with the approval of the governor, may use such remaining convicts for the best interests of the state. The commission and Governor Smith are now agreed that no further leasing of convicts shall occur after the present contracts expire.

The new convict law permits counties to use their own convicts on their own road or other public works, and felony convicts are to be apportioned out to the counties for similar work. But the prison commission will purchase of lease farms on which these men can be employed, and it is hoped that soon this method will supersede the county plan. Four inspectors, being taken from the commission, will personally visit the convicts for camps once in six months for thorough inspection.

GEORGE AND HE TRY SO HARD TO PLEASE HER

LIFE

Compiled by Mrs. H. A. Denlinger, of San Francisco, for "The Scrap Book"

WHY all this toil for triumphs of an hour? Life's a short summer—man is but a flower. By turns we catch the fatal breath and die; The cradle and the tomb, alas, how nigh! To be is better far than not to be. Though all man's life may seem a tragedy; But light cares speak when mighty griefs are dumb, The bottom is but shallow whence they come. Thy fate is the common fate of all; Unmingled joys no man befall; Nature to each allots his proper sphere, Fortune makes folly her peculiar care. Custom does not reason overrule, And throw a cruel sunshine on a fool. Live well; how long or short permit to heaven. They who forgive most shall be most forgiven. Sin may be clasped so close we cannot see its face, Vice intercourse with virtue has no place; Then keep each passion down, however dear, Thou pendulum betwixt a smile and tear! Her sensual snares, let faithless Pleasure lay, With craft and skill to ruin and betray; Soar not too high to fall, but stoop to rise; We masters grow of all that we despise. Oh, then, renounce that impious self-esteem; Riches have wings and grandeur 'is a dream. Think not ambition wise because 'tis brave, The paths of glory lead but to the grave; What is ambition? 'Tis a glorious cheat, Only destructive to the brave and great, What's all the gaudy glitter of a crown? The way to bliss lies not on beds of down. How long we live, not years, but actions tell; That man lives twice who lives the first life well. Make, then, while ye may, your God your friend, Whom Christian worship, yet not comprehend, The trust that's given guard, and to yourself be just, For live we how we may, yet die we must.

SPECIAL DISEASES

REQUIRE THE ATTENTION OF SPECIAL PHYSICIANS

Strong, Vigorous Men and Women

That is what we desire to be. Some fail in this respect through misfortune, others through indiscretion and quite a good many others from neglect. Whatever the cause may be in your case remember a weak constitution is a handicap to success. It is an unnecessary handicap, because you can in all probability be cured, and your weakness or disease removed. The effort you should make is to consult a reliable and experienced specialist.

A physician who has made a specialty of Nervous and Chronic diseases and who is recognized a leader in the profession.

DR. W. E. SHALLENBERGER

Comes to Janesville, Tuesday, February 9th, and will be at the Myers Hotel from 8:00 a. m. until 5:30 p. m.

Many of Southern Wisconsin's citizens have been cured by Dr. Shallenberger, and he is well known in Janesville and vicinity. That his services have been very satisfactory is proven by the fact that since 1901 he has visited Janesville every 28 days, and also by hundreds of letters received from his patients, a few of which are printed at the bottom of this column.

He undertakes to cure permanently the cases he accepts, and sends those who cannot be benefited home without taking a fee from them. This is the reason he continues his visits year after year while other doctors have made a few visits and stopped.

Dr. Shallenberger is the most successful Specialist in the State in the treatment of NERVOUS and CHRONIC DISEASES, proven by the many cures effected in chronic cases which have baffled the skill of many other physicians. His experience has made him so proficient that he can name and locate a disease in a few minutes.

Special Attention Given All Surgical Cases

DISEASES OF MEN

He knows that thousands of men who are suffering from melancholy, despondency, excesses, or overwork have been disappointed so often that they are discouraged and have almost given up all hope of ever being cured. Dr. Shallenberger is familiar with the teachings and methods of all schools of medicine, and does not confine himself to any particular one. He treats his patients to cure them, and uses without prejudice whatever will accomplish that result.

DISEASES OF WOMEN

I can successfully treat you for any weakness that you may be afflicted with. Lack of perfect health means the loss of nearly everything that a woman holds dear in life, and if you are not perfectly well, call and see me. Consultation costs you nothing and it is always confidential. Many chronic diseases if taken in time are easily cured by the skilled specialist and the cost is so trifling compared with the suffering endured by their neglect that it is infinitely cheaper to be made well again. If women realized how much their mental balance depended upon their bodily vigor they would not hesitate to be cured. Do not delay coming to see me but do so at once and you will never regret it. I have been instrumental in restoring happiness to hundreds of unhappy homes and have great faith in my ability to successfully treat all diseases peculiar to women.

DR. SHALLENBERGER SUCCESSFULLY TREATS CATARRH IN ALL ITS FORMS

Diseases of the Nose, Throat, Eye and Ears, deafness and ringing in the ears. Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels and Liver are curable if correctly treated. The most stubborn cases of indigestion and catarrh of the stomach will yield to treatment, and a short time will convince you of the greatness of the truth of this claim. Gall Stone cases should investigate my treatment before submitting to an operation as my treatment rarely fails.

CHRONIC KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

respond quickly and should not be neglected. Hundreds of people who have kidney trouble are refused life insurance every year, who were unaware of its existence.

GOITRE (BIG NECK) Come and let me tell you of the cases I have cured.

PILES, FISTULA AND ALL RECTAL DISEASES Treated without the use of the knife and will remain cured.

A VISIT WILL TELL

Perhaps you are suffering in silence; perhaps you have been unsuccessfully treated; perhaps you anticipate that relief can be secured only through radical surgery; but more likely you consider your case hopeless. Don't despair, even though you have not been successful heretofore. There may be health in store for you yet; a useful life of happiness and prosperity. A visit to my office will tell; surely it is worth the trouble, as health is a prime necessity, a most valuable asset, paramount to almost everything a human being can possess. DO NOT BE SATISFIED UNTIL YOU HAVE BEEN EXAMINED BY DR. SHALLENBERGER.

You may be sent away happy without treatment, but with advice that will save you time and money, as well as mental anxiety. If you require treatment you will be treated skillfully and restored to health within the shortest time and at the least possible expense.

Read the Following Endorsements From a Few Prominent Wisconsin Citizens:

FEAR OF A RACE WAR IS FELT IN PITTSBURG

Attacks by Negroes on Women Still People and Clash Is Imminent.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 6.—To bring justice to the perpetrators of the many recent attacks on white women and girls in the Illinois, Lawrenceville and South side districts of this city, and to take steps to prevent recurrence of the crimes, the better element of the negroes have issued a call for a general mass meeting to be held next Tuesday night.

The feeling between the white people and the negroes is becoming more acute, each day brings its quota of attacks and reported attacks on white girls by negroes. The populace of the affected districts is highly wrought up over the existing situation, and only the most careful vigilance on the part of a double force of policemen prevents a serious clash between the races.

Dianthe Smith and Rose Secock, residing in a suburb, were attacked by negroes yesterday, but their screams frightened the assailants, who escaped. Two negroes, accused of the attack on the girls, were later arrested and sent to the workhouse for three months.

John Stokes, a negro aged 32 years, was arrested on charges preferred by Mrs. Jane Thompson of the South side, who alleges that he entered her home and the room of her daughter, but was frightened away by the screams of the girl. The man will be given a hearing today.

Woman 80 Years Old a Victim.
Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Mary Krulac, aged 80 years, was attacked at her home near here yesterday by a negro. The aged woman's screams frightened her assailant, who escaped, leaving his victim in a critical condition. Shortly after the assault a negro giving the name of Arthur Cochran, and said to be the one who committed the crime, was arrested and is being closely guarded, as the neighbors of Mrs. Krulac threaten to do the prisoner bodily harm.

Woman Shoots to Kill.
Uniontown, Pa., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Anna Davis of Lynn Station, near here, shot and fatally wounded James Donahue yesterday when he, another white man and three negroes attempted to force an entrance into her home. The men laughed at the woman when she warned them to leave and, seizing her husband's revolver, she fired through the door. James Kearns, said to be one of the five men, was arrested on a charge of attempting to break and enter a house, and the state constabulary are searching for the three negroes.

MINERS MAY ADJOURN TO-DAY.

President Lewis Resumes Business of the National Convention.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6.—President Lewis had well in hand yesterday the convention of the United Mine Workers of the United States and Canada, and he was enabled to quicken the movement of business toward the possibility of a final adjournment today. The faction opposing his policies made a few efforts at obstruction, but found little support among the delegates, who have received many of their communications from their local unions urging expedition in the proceedings.

President Feehan of the Pittsburgh district, speaking yesterday afternoon on an alleged grievance that national organizers had been sent into his field to interfere in his administration, was called to order several times by President Lewis, who at length declared that "if President Feehan persisted in annoying the convention he would be put out of the hall." The matter was referred to the national executive board, which is to meet here next week to consider all controversies between the national and the district authorities of the organization.

DECISION AGAINST OFFICER.

Capt. Quattrough May Be Dismissed from Naval Service.

Oltbratter, Feb. 6.—Rear Admiral Sperry last night approved the findings of the court-martial which tried Capt. Quattrough of the battleship Georgia on a charge of intoxication. While the findings were not made public, it is rumored that the officer has been disgraced.

Indeed, it is believed that the alleged offense has been deemed so grave that should the navy department approve of the findings of the court-martial, Quattrough will be dismissed from the service. Lieutenant Commander George W. Kilne, in command of the Georgia for the voyage home from this port.

Indictment.

Muskogee, Okla., Feb. 6.—Gov. Charles N. Haskell, who, with six other prominent Oklahomans, is under indictment on charges of fraud in connection with the town lot frauds here, received an ovation when he arrived yesterday to give bond.

When the governor, accompanied by Mrs. Haskell, State Auditor M. E. Trapp and wife, Chairman Love of the state corporation commission, Adjt. Gen. Frank Canton, and other Guthrie friends, alighted from his train more than a thousand persons were at the station with a brass band to greet him.

The appearance was the signal for long and loud cheering. When the hotel was reached the crowd clamored for a speech.

The governor responded from his automobile. In his speech Gov. Haskell took a new departure in offering an explanation of his indictment. He declared that he had incurred the enmity of corporations, of President Roosevelt and of the government at Washington by championing the cause of labor and by preventing the insertion of a clause in the Oklahoma constitution hostile to labor in case of strikes in the matter of injunctions.

He thanked his old friends and neighbors for the expression of confidence in his innocence of the crime charged and declared he would establish his innocence. Later Gov. Haskell signed his bond, which already bore the signatures of hundreds of Muskogee citizens.

CLAIM $20,000,000 LANDS.

James Hillman's Heirs Think Part of St. Louis Is Theirs.

Butler, Pa., Feb. 6.—Documents found yesterday in the lining of an old trunk are the evidence upon which the heirs of James Hillman will base claims to an estate at St. Louis said to be valued now at $20,000,000.

Lannah Hillman, a daughter of James, went from Butler to St. Louis about 1809 and bought 1,000 acres of land near the location of the present St. Louis bridge, paying $17 an acre for it. She willed the land to her father, and the documents were placed in an old trunk that was not examined until yesterday. It is said the land was never sold nor transferred, and the heirs are preparing to reclaim it.

Government Auto for Taft.

Washington, Feb. 6.—When Mr. Taft becomes president he will ride in an automobile furnished by the government. That question was settled yesterday by the adoption of the report of the conference on the urgent deficiency bill, which carries an item of $12,000 for the "purchase, care and maintenance of automobiles for the use of the president."

PLAN NEW LAW FOR BANKS.

Michigan Officials and Financiers Approve the Proposed Measure.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—The outline of a proposed new banking law for the state of Michigan was made public last night by H. H. Smith, attorney for the Michigan Bankers' association. It is issued in the form of a report of a special committee of the association as amended and adopted by the association's executive council. It has also been approved by State Banking Commissioner H. M. Zimmerman.

The bill makes it a felony punishable by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding five years to make or use false statements to obtain credit. The making or circulation of false rumors derogatory to a bank is also made a felony. The salary of the commissioner of banking is raised from $2,500 per year to $5,000 and the deputy commissioner is given $3,000 per year. Examiners are required to pass an examination as to their competency and are to receive $1,500 the first year and an increase of $250 per year up to a maximum of $2,500. When the stock of a solvent bank is impaired the banking commissioner is authorized to assess the stockholders proportionately to their holdings.

YET the sanctuaries on the ridge sleep had descended. On the broad grounds there was no light of moon or stars, and its chamber windows were dark save where here and there the soft glow of a night lamp sifted through a shutter. The evening had closed gloomily, breeding storm.

Before Jessica extinguished the light she searched in a drawer and found her wedding ring—the one she had worn for less than an hour. When she crept into bed the ring was on her finger. She had fallen asleep with her cheek resting on it.

She awoke with a start, with a vague, inexplicable uneasiness, an instinct that the night had veiled an unusual sound. She sat up in bed, staring into the darkness of the room. Her instant thought had been of David Stires, but the tiny bell on the wall whose wire led to his bedroom was not vibrating. She listened a moment, but there was only a deep silence. Slipping out of bed, she crossed the room and parted the curtain from before the tall French window. The room was on the ground floor and the window gave directly on the lawn. Yellow light glared there came a sudden yellow flare of lightning, and for distant mutter of thunder spoke behind the hills.

Still with the unreasoning uneasiness holding her, she groped to the door, drew the bolt and looked out into the wild, softly carpeted hall, lighted dimly by a lamp set just at the turn of the staircase. All at once a shiver ran through her. There, a dozen steps away, the light fell upon him, stood the man who filled her thoughts.

He stood perfectly still, without movement or gesture, gazing at her.

He stood perfectly still.

She could see his face distinctly, although on the pearl gray wall. It was an expression of strained concern and of deep helplessness. The instant agitation and surprise blotted the puzzle of his presence there. She forgot that it was the dead of night; that she was in her nightgown. It dashed across her mind that some near and desperate trouble had befallen him. All the protective and maternal in her love welled up. She went quickly toward him.

He did not move or stir, and then she realized that, though his eyes seemed to look at her, it was with a passive, trance-like fixity. They saw nothing. He was asleep.

She halted, a deep compassion and a painful wonderment holding her, feeling with a thrill the power she possessed over him. Then, like a cold wave, surged over her a numbing sense of his position. How had he entered? Had he broken locks like a burglar? The situation was anomalous. What should she do? Waked abruptly, the result might be disastrous. Discouraged, his presence there when all slumbered, suspected as he had been, would be ruinous. She must get him away, out of the house, and quickly.

A breath of cool air swept past her, putting out the lamp—an outer door was open. At the same instant she heard steps beyond the curve of the hall. Dr. Brent's voice peremptory and inquiring. Her nerves chilled. He blocked the sole avenue of retreat. No, there was one other, and only one—a single way to shield him. Quiet and unobtrusively now, though her cheeks were hot, she took the hand of the unconscious man, drew him silent and unresisting into the friendly shadow of her room, closed the door noiselessly and locked it.

For a moment she stood motionless, her heart beating violently. Had he been seen? Or had the open door created an alarm? Releasing his hand gently, she found her way softly to a stand, lighted a tiny night taper and threw a glance about her. A sudden confusion tingled through her veins, a sense of madly muddled things, opposing the sweet reminder of their real relationship—was he not in fact her husband?—that lay over beneath her thought to justify and explain.

Suddenly, in the tepid silence of their room, the instant clock struck 3 in deep chiming, like the vibration of a far-off church bell. The tone was not loud—indeed, the low roll of the thunder had been well nigh as loud—but there was in the intrusive metallic cadence a peculiar suggestion to the dominant mind. It penetrated the crust of the sleep. It touched the inner ear of the conscious intelligence. Harry started, a shudder ran through his frame, he averted dizzily, his hand went to his forehead.

In the instant of shocked awakening Jessica was at his side in an agony of apprehension, her arm thrown about him, her hand pressed across his lips, her lips at his ear in an agonized warning:

"Hush! Do not speak! It is I, Jessica! Make no noise!"

She felt her wrist caught in a grasp that made her wince. His whole body was trembling violently. "Jessica!" he said in a painfully articulated whisper. "You? Where am I?"

"This is my room," she breathed. "You have been walking in your sleep. Make no sound. We shall be heard."

A low exclamation broke from his lips. He looked bewilderedly about him, his eyes returning to her face with a horrified realization. "—came here—to your room?" The voice was scarcely audible.

"It was I who brought you here. You were in the hall. You would have been found. The house is roused." He turned abruptly to the door, but she caught his arm. "What are you going to do? You will be seen!"

"So much the better. It will be at my proper measure—as a prowler, a housebreaker, a disturber of honest sleep!"

"No, no!" she protested in a panic. "You shall not. I will not have you taken for what you are not. I know. But they would not know. No one must see you leave this room. Do you not think of me?"

He caught his breath hard. "Think of you?" he repeated huskily. "In there even an hour when I do not think of you? Is there a day when I would not die to serve you? Yet in my very sleep?"

He paused, gazing at her where she stood in the half light, a misty, uncertain figure. She was curiously happy. The delicious and pangless sense of guilt, however—the guilt of the hidden, the blameworthy thing—that was tugging through her was for him a shrinking and acute self-reproach.

"Forgive me," he said, "if you can. I—I can never forgive myself. How can I best get?" For answer she moved to the window, slender and wraithlike. He followed silently. As he parted the curtain a second of bright lightning revealed the landscape, the dark hedges and clustered trees. It blackened, and she drew him back, with a hushed word, pointing where a lantern was flashing through the shrubbery.

"It is a watchman," she said. "He will be gone presently."

"God help me!" he whispered, the pent passion of his dreams rushing to pent passion of his waking. "Why did I ever see your utterance. 'Why did I ever see your face? I was reckless and careless then. I had dimmed the decent side of me that now is quivering alive. I have tried to blot your face from my memory, but it is useless. I shall always see it.'"

On the lawn just outside the window low voices were heard through the increasing rain. They passed, and after a moment he softly unlatched the window.

"Goodbye," he said. He stretched out her hand. He touched it, then drew the window wide. As he stepped noiselessly down to the springy turf the lightning flashed again, a pale green glow that seemed almost before her face. She drew back, and the same instant, through the thunder, the electric bell on the wall rang sharply. She threw on her dressing gown, thrust her feet into slippers and hastened from the room.

The same flash that had startled Jessica lighted brightly the physician and the watchman, who stood at the corner of the building, having finished their tour of inspection. It was the latter who had found the open door and who had aroused the doctor, insisting that he had seen a man in the hall. The other had poolpoached this, but now by the lightning both saw the figure emerge from the French window and disappear in the darkness. They ran back, the physician ahead. The window was not locked, and they stepped through it into an empty room. "To be sure!" said the doctor disgustedly. "He was here all the time, heard us searching the halls and took the first unlocked door he found. Miss Holme, no doubt, is sitting up with Mr. Stires. Not a word of this," he added as they walked along the hall. He barred the outer door behind the watchman and went on. As he reached David Stires' room the door opened, and Jessica came out. She spoke to him in a low, anxious voice. "I was coming for you," she said. "I am afraid he is not so well. I cannot rouse him. Will you come in and see what you can do?"

The doctor entered, and a glance at his patient alarmed him. Until dawn he sat with Jessica watching. When the early sunlight was flooding the room, however, David Stires opened his eyes and looked upon her quite naturally.

"Where is Harry Sanderson?" he asked. "I thought he was here."

She looked at him with a forced smile. "You have been dreaming," she answered.

"I suppose so," he said, with a sigh. "But it was very real. I thought he came in and spoke your name."

She stroked his hand. "It was fancy, dear."

He lay silent a moment. Then he said, "If it could only have been Harry you married instead of Hugh, for he loved you, Jessica."

She flushed as she said, "Ah, that was fancy too."

It was the first time since the day of her marriage that he had spoken Hugh's name.

Scott Invented Postage Stamps.
The postage stamp made its first appearance in 1833. Its invention is due to James Chalmers, a printer of Dundee, who died in 1863. England adopted the adhesive stamp, according to a decree of December 21, 1835, and issued the first stamps for public use on May 6, 1840. A year later they were introduced in the United States and Switzerland, and soon after in Bavaria, Belgium and France.
